

Executive Sales Overview

Dashboard summarizes 2021 sales performance across countries, products, and product groups

Sanan Thushanthan June 2026

Product Performance & Profitability

Key insight: Fridge generated the highest profit despite not being the highest-volume product. While several products achieved similar sales volumes, profitability varied significantly across categories, suggesting that product mix and margin management may have a greater impact on overall business performance than sales volume alone.

Product Group Analysis

Sales by Product Group

Key Insight:

Product group analysis indicates that Computers & Accessories generated the highest sales revenue ($567bn), followed by Small Appliances ($450bn) and White Goods ($425bn). Together, these categories accounted for the majority of total sales, highlighting strong consumer demand across technology and household products. Monthly sales trends reveal a sharp decline in February, followed by a sustained recovery and relatively stable performance throughout the remainder of the year, suggesting resilient demand despite early-year volatility.

Monthly Sales Trend by Product Group

